Can you help?

We are looking for volunteers to do general office duties on alternate Thursdays, also for someone to be available to cover for holidays on Wednesdays. Cover on a Wednesday is very important as Maggie is not in the office and it is a busy morning in the building.

We are also looking for a fire officer. They are responsible for testing fire alarms on a monthly basis and making sure the fire doors and lights etc, are checked on a weekly basis.

If you are interested in taking on any of these roles please speak to Andrew Hardman or Lillian Ogden. Thank you.

A Stockport Heroine Is Running Workshops To Make Sanitary Towels For Homeless Women

Shelter's not the only priority...

The inspiration behind it

It's something we might not think about when food, water and housing are top priorities, but homeless or low-income women know the struggle, and Abi Jenkins has now taken it upon herself to begin free workshops in Stockport for those who wish to make reusable sanitary towels for the homeless.

"Following a news story about a woman who burst into tears when a gentleman at a food bank handed her a box of pads, I became suddenly aware that this is an expensive monthly event in a woman's life."

"Whether she is homeless, or on a low income, it's recognised now that buying disposable pads is not a priority for ladies who have been found to use newspapers and old, dirty rags. This can lead to dangerous adverse effects, not excluding Toxic Shock which can kill or seriously affect organs."

Abi is now imploring the people of Greater Manchester to help her sew as many towels as possible between 10am - 3pm on 30th January - to be distributed amongst the homeless and those on a low income.

"The event is free and material will be provided" Abi says, "if you can bring your sewing machine that would be a great help, although I will have 2 available to use, with walking feet set up."

Homemade cakes and free refreshments will be on offer on the day to keep you going throughout the day and any remainders will be donated to charities who distribute support to those in need.
